

CHAMBER WELCOME

Using an oversized scissors, Rick Sullivan, president of Colortech Inc., cuts a red ribbon recently with help from his son, Aidan, after his Lebanon company joined the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce. Joining him at an open house at the business at 232 S. Ninth St. were (from left) Jay Deshpande, chamber board member and owner of E&E Discount Beer Warehouse; Lebanon Mayor Bob Anspach; state Sen. Mike Folmer; state Rep. Mauree Gingrich; Jeffery Dowd, a Hewlett Packard representative; Sullivan's wife, Kim; Sullivan's parents, Pat and Joan Sullivan; and Jo Ellen Litz, county commissioner. Founded in 1980, Colortech is a full-service printing company that offers multiple commercial presses, graphic design and large-format digital-proofing systems. Earlier this year, the company added an HP Indigo 5000 press.
